CENTENNIAL HALL
Built By Maoris At Morven

Achievement Praised

Yesterdays for the Maoris at Morven was a red letter day as a Centennial Memorial Hall built under Mr. J. Moore's initiative and Mr. G. E. Moore, the present Mayor of Waimate, Mr. Tashlow, the present president of the Chamber of Commerce, were both on hand to preside over the dedication. The main reason for building the hall was to make a permanent memorial to the Maoris on their achievement.

The opening was held at the Waimate Hall and was attended by a large number of people. The Mayor of Waimate, Mr. Tashlow, gave a speech in which he congratulated the Maoris on their achievement. He said that the building would be a permanent reminder of the Maoris' contribution to the community.

Following the opening, the Maoris gathered at the New Zealand Fusiliers Club for a dinner in their honour. The Mayor of Waimate presided over the dinner and thanked the Maoris for their contribution to the community.

Mr. Moore, who is a member of the local Chamber of Commerce, was present at the dedication and said that the hall would be a great asset to the community. He said that the Maoris had made a great contribution to the community and that the hall would be a permanent reminder of their achievement.

The hall was built with the help of several Maoris, including Mr. G. E. Moore, who was the president of the Chamber of Commerce. The hall was designed by Mr. J. Moore, who is a local architect. The hall was built with the help of several Maoris, including Mr. G. E. Moore, who was the president of the Chamber of Commerce. The hall was designed by Mr. J. Moore, who is a local architect.

The hall is located at the intersection of Main Street and the Waimate-Broad Bay Road. The hall is open to the public and is available for use by the community.